The Bloody Shirt in Ohio. We stated recently in substance what we construed to mean that the bloody shirt was no longer to be waved in Obio-namely, that the leading Republican organ in that State had acknowledged that the fifteenth amendment had destroyed so much of the ricenth as related to the right of suffrage. But we were mistaken as to the fact. The leading organ in question denies that it ever made such a concession, and avers that it merely stated what our contention was.

We can only reply that the organ in ques tion contends for what no lawyer in Ohio worthy of the name would for one moment contend for. There is no more doubt that the fifteenth amendment abrogated the fourenth so far as the latter allowed the negroes to be disfranchised than there is that the eleventh amendment abrogated so much of the original Constitution as was inconsistent with it. The language is so plain and unmistakable that we feel as if it were almost a

But neither the United States nor any other State shall assume or pay any debt or obligation incurred in aid of insurrection or rebellion against the United States, or any claim for the loss of emancipa-tion of any slave; but all such debts, obligations, and claims shall be held illegal and

It then puts to us the following query: Would this have been abrogated if there had been a further amendment forbidding a State to disobey this clause? Would that have opened for wholesale popular disobedience the whole scope of this clause? ''

" So in the other case it is absolutely preposterous to contend that the ku kiux klans can "deny" the right of suffrage to negroes within the meaning of the fourteenth or that of the fifteenth amendment.

Note, once more, that the fourteenth amendment, as above quoted, provides that no "State" shall "assume or pay any debt" "incurred in ald of rebellion." General Williams C. Wickham.
Vireinta could ill afford to lose General Williams C. Wickham, who died suddenly in his office in this city yesterday, and the shock caused to this community by the sad event will be felt throughout the length and his attention called to the fact that the emmand of words at their disposal is very much circumscribed—much mare so than would be the case if they had to spell and define regularly each day at school. A knowledge of dictionary, it seems to me, lies at the very foundation of an English education, and a man or woman without such knowledge is at a great disadvantage when thrown into the company of well-educated people. A case in point will illustrate the lack of information on this subject: A father had occasion recently to rebuke his little son for an indiscretion, and used this language: "What I have you the temerally to tell me so?"

The intte fellow had a even heard the word used before, and was so surprised that he has never stood less than ninety in his examinations at school.

WILLIAMS C. The path of civil-service reform has not at all times been pleasant nor easy. The scape and purpose of reform have been much misapprehended, and this has not only given rise to strong opposition, but has led to inaccations by its friends to compass objects not in the least related to it. Thus partisans of the patronage system bave naturally condemned it.
